The following Hawkins Family Record was prepared by Oliver M. Hawkins of 532 South West A Street, Richmond, Indiana.

It was made from information received in many different ways, from the record made by the Hawkins Reunion, from records of the Cane Creek Friends Meeting in Union County, S. C., of which Lydia (Comer) Hawkins was secretary, records in the Court House, Richmond, Indiana, from the inscription on the Hoover monument, from other books and papers and information received by members of the Hawkins family.

Have tried to bring it up to date as near as possible including a part of the year 1952.

Please excuse any mistakes in dates or anything missed that should have been recorded.

Oliver M. Hawkins.

Martha Hollowell

James Hawkins

lived in Union County, South Carolina. His will is on record at Spartanburg, the county seat of Union County, South Carolina.

Nathan Hawkins No. 3

married

Ann Cook

Their son, Nathan Hawkins, born Jan. 18, 1782, married Rebecca Roberts.

This is the Nathan Hawkins that built the log house that now is in the Wayne County Museum on North A and 12th Streets.

He had entered a quarter section of land on Nolan's Fork, which is south of where Webster now is.

It being more unsettled there and in 1812 the Indians were making a lot of trouble and they were forced to come back to the Roberts home for safety.

He built the log house on the corner of the Roberts farm, on what now is South 14th St., a little south of Main St.

On March 27, 1813, their daughter, Betsy Hawkins, was born in the log house. She married Nathan Harold.

They were the parents of Dr. I. S. Harold, former Richmond Physician.

The Indian trouble had been quieted and they went back to their farm, this left the house vacant.

A young man by the name of Robert Bratton arranged with the Roberts family to hold school in the log house, thus it became one of the first school houses in Wayne County. This was before free public schools in the county.

Nathan Hawkins
 born in Wayne County on his father's farm
 one year after they settled in the county.
 He owned a large part of what now is Glen Miller Park and on down west to the quarter section line or to where North 16th St. now is,
 also a small tract on west.
 His home was on the hillside, just south of where in later years the deer pen was, his home had been there for many years.
 His children were born there, and part of the old house is still in the house that stands there today.
 He operated a turning lathe below where the elks
 pen was later.
 In 1856 he built a saw mill which was three stories high and operated by water power with an over-shot wheel. This mill stood near where the boat house now is, and was operated until about 1880.
 Colonel John F. Miller saw the possibilities of making this farm into a fine playground as it was hilly and full of glens in which were many springs, in the wood land were many fine native trees consisting of oaks, poplar, walnut, maple, elm, beech and other native trees, the fields that were used for cultivation were small.
 When Mr. Miller first approached Mr. Hawkins about the purchase of the farm he refused to sell saying it was his home, he had lived there his entire life and he proposed to die there, but later Mr. Miller secured the aid of Dr. Davis who was the Hawkins family physician and also members of his family persuaded him
 to sell.
 In 1880 he sold the farm and moved to North 19th St., Richmond, where he spent the remainder of his days.

Chapter D. A. R.
May 27, 1928

Andrew Hoover and Elizabeth Waymire Hoover were the grandparents of Sarah (Wright) Hawkins, wife of Nathan Hawkins.

Susannah (Hoover) Wright, the mother of Sarah Hawkins, was a sister of David Hoover, the man who named Richmond.

The Hoovers were buried in the old Hicksites Friends cemetery in 1834. Later this cemetery became a part of the Starr Park.

On March 4, 1952, their remains were taken up and March 14, 1952, were reburied in the Hoover cemetery, which is on the Cart Road northeast of Richmond, and the momuments placed there.

The removal of the graves was because the North 9th Street overpass will go over the park and cemetery.

 of Spartanburg, Randolph County.

In 1880 he purchased the farm in Darke County,
 Ohio, and moved on it and lived there for twenty-one years.

Also he had purchased forty acres in Randolph
 County, joining his Ohio land.

Soon after moving to the farm he planted a large apple and peach orchard also pear and cherry trees and grapes and all kind of berries.

The fruit all produced well for many years.

The farm soon became known as the Hawkins fruit farm, people drove there with horse and buggy from ten or twelve miles to get fruits.

Retiring from farming moved to Spartanburg,
 Ind.

He and his wife were members of the Spartanburg Methodist Church.

He was a member of the G. A. R. Post at Spartanburg.

Political he was a Republican, while living in Darke County, Ohio, took an active part in politics, served a number of years on the Darke County Republican central committee.
